Band Will Meet For First Practice

The first practice of the Didsbury Boys' Band will be held Friday.

Several new instruments were purchased last week for the band, but the larger number of members will supply their own instruments.

The band will be under the direction of Dr. H. C. Liesemer and Mr. C. R. Ford.

Considerable interest has developed in the town and country with respect to the band and it is expected that there will be at least thirty instruments in the band.

Didsbury District Grows Good Milling Wheat

The survey made by the Department of Trade of flour-wheat districts shows that Didsbury is in the centre of a flour-wheat district extending from Macleod to Edmonton, and experiments have shown that wheat grown in this district has a high protein content and therefore can be manufactured into high-grade flour.

The Roseland flour mill is now under new management, has been thoroughly overhauled and is now in a position to make as good flour as any manufactured in the district.

The mill has a capacity of 100 barrels per day and uses the long system of milling. The cleaning, scouring and bleaching machinery is all of the latest type.

Mr. S. P. Megill, manager of the mill has had a wide experience and he invites the farmers of the district to give him an opportunity of showing just what their wheat will do when properly milled.

A sample of bread baked for the product of the Didsbury mill and shown to us this week, will compare favorably with bread baked from the highest grade flour.

As soon as threshing is done Mr. Megill expects that the mill will be operating on a 24 hour basis and will be able to take care of all the farmers' business promptly.

Mrs. Woodlock visited Calgary over the weekend and was accompanied home by Mrs. Hugh Lee who will spend a few days visiting friends here.

Mr. E. G. Ranton spent the holiday at Cooking Lake and on his return was accompanied by Mrs. Ranton, Grace and Bill, who have been holidaying there for several weeks.

Obituary.

JONATHAN GOOD.

The funeral services for Mr. Jonathan Good, who died suddenly at Timbuctoo on Friday last, were held at the Knox United Church on Monday, Rev. J. N. Wilkinson, Calgary, conducted the service and was assisted by Rev. A. J. Mitchell. Members of the Masonic Order from Didsbury and Carstairs were present in a body, together with a large number of friends from this district and Calgary.

The services at the graveside were taken by the Masonic Order, the Rev. W. Bro. S. McCracken, of Calgary, performing the ceremony.

The pall-bearers were all Past Masters of King Hiram Lodge, A. F. & A. M., G. R. A. and were Messrs. A. G. Studer, A. Brasso, G. H. Liesemer, A. L. McInnes, A. V. Buckler and J. McDougall.

Deceased was 52 years of age and was born near Kitchener, Ont. He came west with his parents in 1900 and settled in Carstairs. Later he moved to Didsbury and for some years was in business here. He was a member of King Hiram Masonic Lodge and was a Past Master of the Order. In 1920 he moved to Calgary, where he had since resided.

His marriage to Laura Weber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Weber, took place in 1905. Two children were born of this union, Mrs. Morridge, of Calgary, and Russell, at home.

Besides his widow and children he leaves to mourn his loss: three brothers, Moses, Manuel and Benjamin, all of Didsbury, and three sisters, Mrs. Geo. Bricker, of Michigamoo, Mrs. Norman Steekle, of Youngstown, Alta., and Mrs. N. Hallman, of Edmonton.

The many floral tributes and the large funeral cortege testified to the esteem Mr. Good commanded in the district.

WEEKLY JOKE

The young wife was in tears when she opened the door for her husband. "I've been insulted," she sobbed. "Your mother insulted me!"

"My mother," he exclaimed, "but she is a hundred miles away!"

"I know, but a letter came for you this morning and I opened it."

He looked at it. "I see, but where does the insult come in?"

"In the post-script," answered she. "It said: 'Dear Alice, don't forget to give this letter to George!'"

Wheat Survey Being Conducted By Wheat Pool

The Alberta Wheat Pool is conducting through the junior wheat clubs a survey of wheat being grown in all districts where clubs are located. Department of agriculture field men in judging the groups and scoring the club plots for purity of variety, are also making purity of variety counts on the other wheat of the farmers. The system followed is that the judge, when he has finished the junior plots, proceeds to the adjacent fields on the farm and prepares a purity of variety report on the wheat grown.

By this method the wheat pool hopes to obtain a fairly accurate idea of the quality of wheat being grown by wheat producers throughout the province. The wheat clubs number 46, being located in districts extending from Bow Island in the south to Grande Prairie in the north.

For the past few years the wheat pool has been taking a great interest in the work of educating the junior farmers in the province in the benefit of growing pure varieties of grain. It is believed that the innovation introduced this year of testing the run of the crop on the various farms on which the juniors live will give further encouragement to the movement, as well as providing valuable information.

Less than ten years ago Alberta had very little mileage in all-weather roads. Today there are more than 2,000 miles of roads which are possible of auto travel at any time during the spring, summer and fall, irrespective of the general weather conditions. These highways connect with the larger centres and most of the mountain and larger lake resorts. Weather need be no concern of the motor tourist coming to Alberta for these resorts.

Lessons Of The World Grain Show.

The great World Grain Exhibition and Conference has become a matter of history, but to the thousands of visitors who were privileged to view its wonderful display it will long be remembered as one of their most delightful and instructive experiences. Western Canadians, in particular, who had never had the opportunity of visiting the other provinces of their own Dominion must have been deeply impressed with the variety, magnitude and richness of the resources of their country, and to have obtained through the various provincial exhibits a renewed confidence in the future of Canada.

A tour of the British Columbia exhibit could not fail to have impressed one with the amazing wealth of resources in that great province. Divided into three sections, the exhibit depicted first the forest and mineral wealth of the Pacific Coast province; then the magnificent fruit products, with their attractive orchard scenes, and finally the fisheries whose products are known and in demand the world over.

Or, jumping over the prairie provinces and into Ontario, the visitor found not an amazing display of manufactured products from that great industrial province, but they were impressed with the wealth which is being produced from the mines of the province as indicated by the thousands of dollars' worth of minerals on display. They learned how Ontario was proceeding with a vigorous reforestation policy to maintain its forest wealth, how forest fires are fought, and other steps taken to conserve this great natural resource.

Studying the Quebec exhibit, depicting the quiet pastoral life of the people away from the industrial centres, one could not fail to get a new understanding of the ancient province, and to realize what a steady influence it is bound to exert upon the national life of the Dominion. The towering commerce on the mighty St. Lawrence, its great maritime ports, with the neat, intensively cultivated farms stretching back from the river banks, all conveyed a picture of beauty, strength and progress, the homes of contented thrifty people.

To visitors from other provinces and countries, the exhibits of the prairie provinces must have been a revelation indeed. Holding the view, as undoubtedly many such visitors did, that these provinces produce nothing but grain and other agricultural products, they certainly had their ideas expanded. Manitoba devoted its exhibit to a display of the wild bird and animal life of that province, extending from its southern prairie fields to the arctic circle. It was one of the show exhibits of the Exhibition and people stood before it in interested crowds lost in admiration.

Alberta demonstrated that it also let visitors know that 14 per cent. of all the coal supplies in the world were located within its borders, that it produces tens of millions of pounds of beet sugar annually, that its lakes and rivers teem with fish, that its timber areas are very large.

And Saskatchewan, popularly known as the "bread basket of the Empire," which in normal years produces more than one-half of all the wheat grown in Canada, and more than any other single province or state in the world, surprised everybody with its wonderful exhibit of huge logs from its timbered regions, its many varieties of fish, and big fish at that which would do credit to a province by the sea, its mineral wealth of coal and clays in the south and richer metals in the north, its wild bird and animal life, its scenic beauty spots.

The usually accepted picture of the prairies as flat, uninteresting fields of grain, and nothing else, was dispelled by these truly wonderful exhibits. Even to the people living on these prairies they were a revelation. And to unite the whole were the comprehensive exhibits of the Dominion Government revealing in all their richness and variety the magnitude of the resources and products of Canada.

But why recall these things now the Exhibition is over? Because one of the objects of the Exhibition was to bring this knowledge in its most interesting and fascinating and compelling form to the people of Canada and the world. Seeing is believing, and those who saw Canada on parade at Regina cannot fail to have been impressed and convinced of the development and prosperity which the future has in store for this Dominion, and for every part of it.

And such conviction was reinforced by the peeps into the past which were also afforded. One had only to stick their head through the window of the old Hudson Bay trading post and examine its contents, or gaze upon the means of transportation in the days of the pioneers— not so very long ago at that,—the old Red River cart, the dog sled, the Equino heat, and contrast them with the great Hudson Bay barges at Winnipeg and Calgary, to mention only two, and with the C.P.R. and C.N.R. exhibits and the automobile exhibits of modern means of transportation, to appreciate the fact that Canada has made amazing progress in the short span of its national existence. Such progress offers but a glimpse and a promise of the still greater progress and development that is to be.

Thus in the midst of a depression which has to some extent at least shaken the confidence of many of our people, the World Grain Exhibition came with its wonderful and beautiful story. It also brought a message. It is not a message of despair, but of hope. A message that, trying and difficult as times may temporarily be, they are, after all, only temporary because a nation with such resources, with such culture, with such virile and progressive people, cannot fail to surmount any and all difficulties. Canada is for the moment caught in the maelstrom of world events and conditions beyond our control, but it will win through and rise to greater grandeur heights than ever before.

Eskimo Slaying

Village Had Man Killed By Other Members Of The Tribe

Story of the slaying of an Eskimo village "bad man" by other members of the tribe, is told in a wireless report received at Royal Canadian Mounted police headquarters at Ottawa from Inspector T. Sandys Wunsch, on board the Northern supply steamer "Nasopie."

Oo-Shook-Juke, an Eskimo who 13 years ago killed a fellow-aborigine at Cape Dorset, in Baffin Land, met retribution six months ago, when his own life was taken by a trio of Eskimos whom Oo-Shook-Juke had been threatening.

The dead man was regarded as insane. He had shot at his wife some time before his own death, and for no apparent reason he had informed the three men who eventually killed him that he intended shooting them.

The trio forestalled him, and took the law into their own hands. They decided that the tribe would be better off without Oo-Shook-Juke, and forthwith shot him.

When Inspector Sandys Wunsch reached Wladivostok on board the "Nasopie," the tribal chiefs and all interested parties were produced and an inquiry set on foot. The inspector informed headquarters that a complete report would be mailed when the "Nasopie" reached Moosehide on her homeward trip.

WIFE'S DELIGHT AT HUSBAND'S LOSS

30 Pounds of Fat!

Here is something all wives of fat men will be glad to know. It is the experience of a woman whose husband recently weighed 230 lbs. She writes:—

"I really feel I must write and tell you that, after taking Kruschen Salts for nearly 3 months, my husband has lost his weight down from 230 lbs. to 200 lbs. This has been achieved by nothing else but Kruschen. I am too heavy also, and I started taking Kruschen only three weeks ago. Already I have got down from 153 lbs. to 144 lbs. We are delighted." — (Mrs. C.)

Kruschen combats the cause of fat by cleansing the internal organs to perform their functions properly — to throw off each day those waste products and poisons which, if allowed to accumulate, will be converted by the body's chemistry into fatty tissue.

Nothing To Worry Them

Newfoundland Is Lucky To Have Backing Of Mother Country

It may be a bit of a shock to Newfoundlanders' pride that for a time they anticipate their dominion status virtually taken away from them and the country placed under a commission which will perform all the essential functions of government. This, at any rate, is the recommendation of Lord Amulree's commission which came out to Newfoundland to investigate, and it is likely to be adopted.

But Newfoundland should not worry. Newfoundlanders should be very happy to think that somebody else is going to take over the job of straightening out the tangle into which they have gotten themselves. What has happened is simply this: One of John Bull's family has got into a financial mess, and the old man is coming to the rescue. He says in effect: "Here, just stand aside for a while until I put you on your feet, and when I see that you are all right I'll step out and you can run your own house again."

That is one of the advantages of being able to look to a Mother Country. — St. Thomas Times-Journal.

How the Rule Works

National Problem, Doubly Faced

When Man Obtains Job As a national problem, a man thrown out of work is only half the mischief done. It means one less worker to carry the burden of one more dependent. Fortunately, the rule works the other way when it comes to increased employment. A man in a new job means for the whole nation one more worker to carry one less dependent.

Supposing that at the depth of the depression in March we had 12,000,000 persons idle. It would mean that we had 35,000,000 persons at work. We had three people with jobs to carry one without a job. If employment has increased by 3,500,000 jobs, it means very nearly 8,500,000 persons at work, against 8,500,000 persons still idle. We have almost five workers to carry one idle person. The social burden is almost cut in two. — New York Times.

Britain May Capture

Coveted American Cup

New All-Steel Cutter Revives Hope Of Sportsmen

A beautiful new streamlined racing cutter, winner of races after races by spectacular margins, suddenly has revived British hopes of capturing the American cup.

The cup—"that old mug" so persistently pursued by Sir Thomas Lipton for 33 years—probably is more coveted by British sportsmen than any other trophy in the world. Why Britain never has been able to regain it since it crossed the Atlantic in 1851 is a riddle.

But Britainers believe that the answer has been found in "Velashed," ultra-modern, all-steel creation of Charles E. Nicholson, who designed the last two Shamrocks for Sir Thomas Lipton. "Velashed" embodies all the lessons Nicholson learned from the defeat of "Shamrock V." by Harold Vanderbilt's "Enterprise" in 1930.

The success of the new cutter has made it almost certain that her owner, W. L. Stephenson, will succeed the picturesque and beloved Sir Thomas as challenger for the cup. Stephenson, chairman of the British subsidiary of F. W. Woolworth & Co., named the yacht after his three daughters, Velma, Sheila and Daphne.

No contest could be held this year, since the challenge must be made at least nine months before the race, but British yachtsmen believe Stephenson will issue it in the fall if "Velashed" keeps on winning. In the great Scottish racing festival known as the "Clyde fortnight" which just ended, "Velashed" won five firsts and three seconds out of nine races over "Shamrock V." and King George's Britannia. The two wins "Shamrock" scored over "Velashed" were by margins of only a few seconds, while all "Velashed's" victories were decisive.

"Velashed's" chief feature, aside from her steel hull, is the now-famous "Park Avenue" boom, frankly copied from the "Enterprise" with a few new ideas added. It greatly speeds up handling of the sails. Moreover, she is equipped with all the other time-saving mechanical devices which Lipton said were responsible for "Enterprise's" victory, in the last cup race.

Almost a sure sign "Velashed" was built to challenge for the cup is the fact that it is 88 feet on the waterline and 127 feet overall. That is longer than "Shamrock V.," which felt the need of more length in the rougher American waters, where the cup course is laid. "Velashed" is, however, noticeably inferior to "Enterprise" in sailing to windward. "Velashed" is an improvement in this respect. Otherwise the new cutter adheres pretty much to the international specifications for "J" class yachts. It is 15 feet more than 200 tons, has a hull area of 7,500 feet, a 155-foot mast, a beam of 21 feet and draft of 15 feet lead steel weighs about 80 tons.

"The Other Club"

Distinguished Organization In London Celebrates Twenty-First Birthday

One of the most distinguished dining clubs in the world, known as "The Other Club," has just celebrated its 21st birthday at a dinner at 22, Grosvenor Gardens, London, England, among the guests being Sir William Jowitt, former Attorney-General, and Lord Kyrle, former President of the Federation of Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire, General Jan Christian Smuts, South African statesman, presided at the coming-of-age party.

The club, founded by Winston Churchill, and the late Lord Birkbeck meets once a fortnight for dinner in a private room at the Savoy during the time that Parliament is sitting. It was intended to provide a ground whereon political opponents might meet. One of the rules is that "nothing in the intercourse of the members shall be allowed to interfere with the full amenities of party politics."

Because of the increasing importance of Canada and other American nations in Japan's foreign relations, the foreign office is planning to establish a new bureau to handle dealings with nations in north, south and central America.

This year's cotton production in the United States was forecast by the Department of Agriculture at 12,314,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight, compared with 13,002,508 bales last year.

John Coghlin, 72, veteran of the Boer Rebellion, died at Victoria recently. A native of Cork, Ireland, he came to Canada in 1883 and for many years owned a cattle ranch at Jumping Pound, Alberta. He has been a resident of Victoria for 19 years.

Serum Treatment

London Investigator Claims He Has Found Specific For Flu

Two cures of influenza pneumonia by serum similar to that for immunizing ferrets against "flu" were claimed by Dr. Ronald Hare, a London investigator.

In telling how he treated two women, one of whom was dying, Dr. Hare said "both cases reacted in a very dramatic fashion" and recovered.

The serum was prepared from humans convalescing from influenza.

Dr. Hare reported in The Lancet, British medical journal, that his first case, a woman of 27, was in a grave condition.

After two injections of serum four hours apart, he said, she began to improve. A third injection was made the following day. Thereafter her recovery was steady. In the second case also, Dr. Hare said, there was an uninterrupted recovery.

Peasants Had Good Idea

Easily Solved Problem Of Watermelon Surplus In Bulgaria

Overproduction of watermelons has been solved by the peasants in Peshtera, Bulgaria, without calling on economists for advice. To the neighboring village of St. Constantine come thousands of summer visitors, all fond of watermelons. The peasants, who have more than they can sell, take their surplus to huge haystacks nailed to trees in the woods and deposit them there. Over the box is a sign: "Take as much as you want and leave as much money as you wish." Few fail to pay a reasonable sum for the melons. The money melon shop does a thriving business and no racketeers have yet robbed the till.

World 'Phone Lines Spread

Since the opening of lines between India and England on May 1 an average of five calls a day have been made from Bombay.

A Novel Wireless

Conference Telephone Used At Stockholm Great Advantage To Delegates

At the World Power Conference held in the Stockholm concert house a striking technical novelty was introduced enabling audiences at conventions to listen to lectures in several languages simultaneously while moving about and without being disturbed by noises or by conversations between bystanders.

This new contrivance, called the conference telephone, constructed by the L. M. Ericsson Telephone Company, is a portable wireless receiver of tiny dimensions consisting of a coil antenna, placed around the shoulder, a small receiver box fixed in the button-hole or placed in a pocket and a head 'phone. The transmitter antenna is mounted around the walls of the conference room, so that the bearer of the receiver outfit can stand or move anywhere in the room while listening to the lecture, undisturbed by conversation of other members of the audience.

Another great advantage is the possibility of interpreting a lecture in different languages simultaneously. The interpreters sit in an adjoining room and send their interpretations over different wave-lengths for each language. The listener only has to choose the receiver outfit tuned for the wave-length of the language he prefers to hear. This will naturally greatly shorten the duration of the proceedings and forms an elegant solution of the difficulties previously encountered at conferences when using the costly and complicated method with fixed telephone receivers at each seat with cords that are apt to get entangled and cause inconvenience.

This revolutionizing innovation was enthusiastically received by the 100 members of the conference, who also admired other electric installations, including signal lights in different colors indicating the different languages used and an automatic telephone system between the conference officials. — St. Thomas Times-Journal

- 1 1/2 cups boiling water.
- 1 baked 9-inch pie shell.

Combine peaches and sugar and let stand 10 minutes. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water, add salt, and pour over peaches, stirring occasionally as mixture boils. Chill until slightly thickened. Turn into cold pie shell. Chill until firm. Cover with Three-Minute Meringue, or top with whipped cream.

No Thought Reader

They were "sitting-out" at a dance, and for ten minutes he had sat gazing at her without uttering a word. "Obviously," she thought, "he wants to know me, but he is shy. I'll give him a lead."

So she murmured: "I believe I can read your thoughts." "Then why don't you try your powder puff," he said. "I think nothing makes a woman look more unattractive than a shiny nose."

A SMART DRESS—SLENDERIZING AND CHARMING

It is amazing at how easily it is fashioned.

The moulded bodice cut in one to where the lower skirt joins, helps needlessly toward slenderness. It can be belted if you wish. Horizontal pin tucks accent the waistline. Has Praise For Russia

Canadian Journalist Says Country Will Command World Attention

One of Canada's noted journalists, Robert J. Cromie, who was in New York en route home from a European trip, said Russia's "great progress for a number of years, is going to command world attention, world admiration and, along certain lines, world emulation."

Cromie, editor and owner of the Vancouver Sun, said the Russians are in the beginning of an economic honeymoon.

"If there is one country in the world today which has found a real job to do and is wholeheartedly doing it, that country is Russia," he declared.

"Cromie said he felt the principle of capitalism is sound, 'but capitalism as we have over-emphasized it, the United States and Canada and England curtail production and distribution and thereby prevents the growth of industries and nations."

"Where our economy is so wrong is that as I see it, we emphasize the production and turnover of capital instead of emphasizing the turnover of goods."

With her business growth ahead the Canadian said, "Russia is the next credit best available in the world today. As a business man or a nation, I should feel more comfortable having money coming to me from the U.S.S.R. than from any other place on this globe."

The Soviet Union, Cromie said, "has vitality, ability and tremendous pride in her schemes and obligations of their new regime."

'I Like To Go When I Have To Go'

Traveller Gives Some Reasons Why He Likes To Take A Train

When I make my plans to leave for somewhere at 7 o'clock I like to wait around till 8:30 before the last member of the party is ready. It wastes my time, spoils my disposition, and makes me late at the other end. That's why I like to take the train—it starts on schedule and arrives on time.

I hate to sit cramped for hours, accommodating my legs and feet to awkward luggage on the floor. I like to sit comfortably stretched out when I travel—and so I take the train.

I don't like to dodge around giant inter-city trucks. They frighten me. They look dangerous. They make poor drivers nervous. They make strong men to swear and lovely ladies to scream. It's almost as bad to be scared half to death as it is to be killed. Talk about road hogs—those inter-city trucks are more than that. They're swash-buckling bullies. They're so big they'll nose with any ordinary conveyance—but they never bother me when I ride on the train.

I don't like those drivers that are always looking for a road race. A race is all right in Indianapolis or Daytona Beach, but it's no good on Trunk Highway 15. Of course, every so often one of these apes will race a train to a crossing, but I always feel sorry for the poor saps that were riding with him. They'd be much better off riding on the train.

I like to read as I travel.

I like to sleep at night stretched out horizontally.

I like to take my clothes off when I go to bed.

I have slept on the ground many a time—but when I'm travelling to arrive somewhere—on a business trip or the start of a vacation—I like to get sleep that leaves me rested.

I like to wash my face and hands at intervals and it may be a foolish notion, but I like to dry them on a clean towel. On a private towel.

This I like to drink of water when I'm thirsty. I may not care about it when somebody else's thirsty, or when we come to a drinking place on regular schedule, but when I, myself, am thirsty, and I can have it on the train.

I like to eat when I myself am hungry. They let me do that on the train. I have never had a better breakfast, a business trip according to weather. Very often I am obliged to travel in the rain or in the snow or in the heat of heavy rain, snow or fog. The train takes me through on schedule—rain or shine, hot or cold, day or night, summer or winter, low ceiling or high fogs—the dependable factor in travel. Works for all. I like a watchful waiting for the last twenty miles before the next rest stop. I know that every one else is watching, waiting too. The air becomes fresher. The situation nerve-racking. Friendship ceases. For when a lot of people want to go out at the same time and there's only one door to go out through, and only one door to go in through, and only one door to get through when you get to the place—then, I say, friendship ceases and strife begins. Every man for himself and devil (or cramps) take the hindmost.

No, sir. I much prefer to go when I have to go. That's another reason why I like the train.

Something To Treasure

All Canadians Honor Memory Of Sir Wilfrid Laurier

Down in Arthabaska, Quebec, they are transforming Sir Wilfrid Laurier's old home into a national shrine. Everything is to be restored as Sir Wilfrid left it, even to the paper on the walls. His study will be recreated as he knew it, and a room he devoted to pictures and statuary of old rural Quebec will be preserved as it was when Sir Wilfrid made the house his home and retreat.

This is something in which all of us no matter what our political allegiance, might wish to have a part. For as political controversies recede and weathery decades are seen in true perspective, the memory of Laurier becomes something to treasure. He was not only a great party leader and a great son of Quebec, he was a great Canadian, one who loved and served this country with a glory that belongs to us all. In perpetuating his name and fame, Canadians honor themselves. Ottawa Journal.

A Godsend To Schoolboys

Recent Invention Is Wonderful Machine Which Solves Equations

One of the most remarkable of recent scientific discoveries is R. M. Mallock's invention of a machine which solves simultaneous equations. It consists of a series of small transformers each with a number of windings. By adjusting the number of turns on each transformer, the equations may be read off directly by twirling a number of dials. As many as ten equations can be solved simultaneously.

Marvels Of Science

Wizardry Of The Electric Eye Is Difficult For The Lay Mind To Grasp

The electric eye will get you if you don't watch out. At least that seems to be the moral from the latest magic of applied science. It has been put to use already in offices, factories, restaurants, homes and theatres.

It has been set into movements where it registers your speed; and it is just too bad for you if you have been stepping on the gas. But it also turns on the parking lights when parking lights are indicated and it may watch the sun send a switch on the street lights, and next morning turn them out again. It works automatically in schools and factories, turning on and off the lights as necessity demands.

It is quite a busy entity around people, doing the 175 manual processes required to make a half-tone cut (photograph for printing) may be covered by the eye in a few moments. It can match colors of papers and inks, count legs, control the thickness of paper being produced and detect a prop in the area of paper going into the printing presses and instantly stop the machines.

Electric eyes turn on and off the lights giving the course to ships and they do the same thing for flying boats. The shadow of a car on a cross door and it will open—if the electric eye is on its job—admitting the waitress and her tray.

How does it work? Scientists O. H. Caldwell, writing in the New York Times, says that it is through the selenium light sensitive cell. You illuminate a prepared bit of selenium and its resistance undergoes a sharp change; the electrical current that is flowing in the circuit suddenly increases and can be used to operate relays, which in turn work switches producing the desired result.

The electric eye isn't though very in fact it has just begun. Its destiny if it gets busy is to make electricity direct from sunlight. Upon every foot of the earth's surface the sun delivers 175 watts. An ordinary room 30 if it gets busy is to make electricity heat energy at the rate of 200 horsepower. It is computed that electric sunlight falls on the deck of the Atlantic liners to drive them at full speed—Winnipeg Free Press.

Establish Weather Depots

Plan New Meteorological Stations Throughout The West

Proposals for the establishment of new meteorological stations throughout the west and for the providing of complete instruction to prospective accurate meteorological data in its relation to agriculture, are receiving the attention of both the federal and provincial governments.

Plans for the establishment of such a service were laid at a conference of federal and provincial authorities held in Regina, and announcement of them was made by Hon. J. B. Fryar, K.C., chairman of the Saskatchewan commission on conservation and agriculture, and chairman of the joint commission of the three prairie provinces.

The proposals embrace the establishment of meteorological stations with up-to-date equipment at federal experimental farms, maintained by the provincial governments. The data and reports of these stations would be supplemented by data from similar stations located at strategic locations in order to have records from all areas of the provinces concerned.

It is understood that the federal government through its department of agriculture, should set up a small department as the basis for a World's Grain Exhibition and Conference.

Good Likeness Of Caesar

After careful study the German Archaeological Institute has pronounced the Roman bust found near Colonia, Italy, a likeness of Julius Caesar. It had been resting on a shelf in the library of Acre, not far from Ostia, for more than 200 years. No one knew what it represented, but now the German savants declare it is the most exact likeness of all the images of Caesar that exist.

Is "Town Band" An Extravagance?

In several Ontario towns the municipal councils, in efforts to cut expenditures, are considering omitting their customary grants to the town band, but, as in every case, the band cannot carry on without the grant, this economy move is proving by no means popular.

In Collingwood they are very proud of their Kilbie Band, and when it was threatened with extinction through withdrawal of the municipal grant there was such a vigorous protest from the citizens generally that the council not only continued the grant, but increased it from $1,100 to $1,200. In Midland, Ont. the council by a majority vote cancelled the grant to the band but the citizens are not going to let the matter drop. They hope to find some other way out. Incidentally it was mentioned that the band master is giving musical instruction to a class of 40 boys, who would be deprived of this tuition if the band was dispensed with. Citizens know the value of a good band, it brightens up the drab life of a small town.

Successful Sale of Alberta Bonds.

Strong evidence of Alberta's high standing in the money markets was provided during the past week, when an issue of $1,000,000 was purchased by an eastern syndicate at a price of 93.37, the highest price recorded this year for any western province. The cost basis to the province is 5.52 1-2 per cent. The sale marks the first outright sale of bonds yet effected by any of the western provinces, the general custom being for bond issues to be agreed to handle bond issues for the province at a certain price. The price compares with the cost of 6.27 for a Manitoba issue earlier this year, and for 6.07 per cent. for Saskatchewan bonds. A recent issue by B.C. cost that government 5.67.

Reducing Waste of Natural Gas.

Success of the new absorption plant installed by one of the large operators in Turner Valley gas fields in recovering large amounts of gas from the gas which has been going to waste year after year, has been amply demonstrated since its installation. The operation of the plant commenced in May and in that month recovery of gas from the waste gas amounted to 11,685 barrels, and in June this had increased to 15,835 barrels for the month.

Alberta Seed Grower Honored.

Distinction came this year to A. C. B. Grenville, pure seed grower, of Morris, who was selected by the Canadian Seed Growers' Association as the farmer to be honored by election as Robertson Associate member, with the awarding of the accompanying medal. This distinction is accorded for outstanding work over a period of years in pure seed production. Mr. Grenville is the only farmer in Canada to receive the honor this year and is the second Alberta seed grower to receive it, two years ago the distinction having been given to Nels Linden, Wetaskiwin, for many years a noted seed producer. Mr. Grenville has been an exhibitor of seed grains for a number of years at Chicago and elsewhere and at the recent world's grain congress in Regina he won second place in western rye grass seed. He was born in Devonshire, Eng. and came to Alberta in 1908, having farmed since then near Morris.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt, young and beautiful student in an art school, unconsciously sketches the head of a fellow student during class and when she is supposed to be drawing a Grecian urn. The professor, looking at her sketch, embarrasses Camilla by having Peter Anson, the boy whose head she sketched, criticize her work before the class. Afterwards, Camilla goes to the park outside to cry. A hand touches her shoulder. It turns out to be Peter, who apologizes for his action and consoles her. Camilla secretly adores him. He makes a date to see her that evening but is outwitted when she names a date to the theatre first and then to the night club where they meet some of Camilla's friends.

(Now go on with the story)

CHAPTER IV.

Peter danced with Cathie, his arms aching for Camilla. He felt clumsy now, and self-conscious. But Cathie told him gushingly, "You're a marvelous dancer, Mr. Anson. I could dance with you all night!"

"I'd never last that long. And I don't like to dance, anyway," he told her bluntly.

"Not even with me?" she pouted. "Oh, you're all right. It's just that I don't like to dance."

"Then why did you bring Camilla here?"

"Because she wanted to come here, I believe."

"That's just like her. She gets everything she wants."

"I suppose so. But why shouldn't she?" defensively.

"That's what everyone seems to think. But she never troubles herself about making anyone else happy—any more," Cathie answered.

"Has she changed recently?"

"No, she's more changed every time I see her, which isn't often. She doesn't play with the crowd like she used to, and she acts most of the time as if she were far away, when she is around."

"Perhaps she's getting serious about life and trying to find some definite work. I met her at National!"

"I know. She's been going for the intellectual stuff in a big way and cutting the rest of us. She is downright snooty, lately," Cathie shrugged.

"Perhaps you just imagine it," Peter defended her. "Any kind of study takes a lot of one's time and mind. I'm sure she doesn't intend to high-tail you."

"You're pretty crazy about her, aren't you?" Cathie's eyes narrowed. "Call me crazy if you like," she smiled.

"Well, she will treat you like all the rest. Almost every fellow in our crowd has had his crush on Camilla."

and his cure. They all get over it after she has kept them miserable for awhile."

"What nice sharp claws our kitten has!" thought Peter, and replied, "That makes it nice for me, because I might be the exception to the rule, after all!" His eyes flashed sternly. "Taise that sleep in the face, now. You asked for it."

But nothing daunted Cathie. "Oh, yeah? Well, if she's too cruel, bring your wounds to me and I'll bandage them up for you. I might feel sorry for you because you're a nice boy. Heart wounds are serious."

"Thanks a lot, Miss Harris. You are very kind." She ignored the reproach in his voice, and when they danced again, spoke only in gay banter. Peter's eyes followed Camilla's lithe grace in Terry's arms, covetously he grasped the loss of one moment with her, the more because he knew he would never dare to take her out again.

The supper order appalled him. Lucky he had brought the extra money. He was in for it, all right. As he might expect the same thing to happen any time he made a date with Camilla. She had scores of wealthy friends whom he would encounter everywhere. As her escort, he had to be prepared to act as host any time.

Passing her on the floor, he danced to her with the orchestra, "Save the last dance for me, sweetheart."

She nodded smiling. The last dance, he thought. Their last, forever, perhaps; and wondered if she would care much if it were.

Terry ordered more drinks when they returned to the table.

"Nothing for me," Camilla declined. As host, Peter felt obliged to join his guests. "Ginger ale," he said, and apologized to Terry "Eight o'clock class tomorrow and a headache won't go."

"Don't you hate the grind?" drawled Terry, luxuriously sipping his high ball.

"Grind?" Peter exclaimed with surprise.

"Mr. Anson is one of those rare people who likes to use his brains," Camilla explained.

Was she laughing at him, Peter wondered, and grew miserable. Perhaps Cathie was right. She was beginning already to punish him for his absurd hopes.

The waiter presented two bills, one for the food and one for the drinks. The total astounded Peter, but he paid without a flicker of hesitation. He had had his fling and it would last him for awhile. "Let that be a lesson to you," mocked the orchestra and the tuxor soloist, in a sudden crescendo. It would be, he resolved.

But when he took Camilla to his arms for the last dance, he forgot bank balances and supper charges that looked to him like the figures of a bank's resources.

"Goodnight, sweetheart," sighed the music, "till we meet tomorrow," crooned the tenor's plaintive voice. "Years and parting may make us forlorn," echoed Peter's heart; then Camilla raised her eyes to meet his and his hopes lifted, "but with the dawn, a new day is born, so I'll say goodnight, sweetheart, goodnight."

The ride home was far too short in time and far too long by the taxi meter that ticked with jarring insistence. Peter wished that he might dismiss the cab and nonchalantly walk home after a lingering goodnight, but Camilla managed that.

"You needn't come in. It's very late and you have an eight o'clock class you know. I've had a lovely time, Mr. Anson."

"Thanks, Miss Hoyt. So have I. Did we chase away your blackie blues?"

Oh, yes. I'd forgotten them."

"That's good. Well, goodnight!" She placed her little white-gloved hand in his. The soft night air ruffled the bright hair on his bare head and she stifled a sudden impulse to reach up and smooth it. "Goodnight," she whispered, and was gone before he could think what he would like to say.

The pulsing motor of the cab recalled him to his senses. He sprang in and slammed the door. He rode only to the nearest car line and dismissed it, parting with his last ten dollars, half of which he received in change. It was all that was left of his "trill" that he had provided for appearances, promising himself to reposit most of it on the following day. But it was gone, and all he had was a sweet memory that would have to last him for many months.

Camilla flung herself upon the high mahogany four-poster bed. Long ago, when she had first slept in that bed, she had felt like a fairy princess. It had symbolized the utmost in grandeur and luxury to her then. For the past three years, she had hated it more every night she slept there. But she was not thinking about that to-night. She was hating Peter. At least, that is what she declared to herself, over and over. That was because she was sure that she never could have him.

Then her memory exulted in the way he had looked at her when they danced, the dear words he had said. She was so precious, just as she had known. And that was because she had talked to her that day. Was it only today that he had first spoken to her, and changed her whole world? How strange life was, that years could pass in which nothing of importance ever happened, and then a few hours could so fully hold so much happiness and beauty!

"But he didn't ask to see you again!" her thoughts jeered, and she was plunged into misery again. He only had been sorry for her because of the incident in class that day, and taking her out was his chivalrous way of apologizing. Her face burned with remorse at the memory of his finding her in the park in tears. It angered her. She was angry and hurt—because she was in love and not at all sure of being loved. That was why she wanted to hate Peter.

About 1,800 Raging In Different Parts Of World Every Minute

It is estimated that the approximate number of thunderstorms occurring over the whole earth in a course of a year is 1,800,000. This works out at 44,000 a day, and if we make allowance of an hour for the average duration of each, a simple calculation tells us that at any one minute there are probably some 1,800 storms raging simultaneously over the continents, islands and oceans.

From the known rate of electricity discharges, it may also be deduced that in every second of time there must be about 100 flashes of lightning passing either from cloud to earth or from cloud to cloud in various corners of the globe.

Thunderstorms reach their greatest frequency in equatorial and tropical regions, where 100 to 150 a year is quite an ordinary number. In parts of Java and near the mouth of the Amazon the normal annual number is said to exceed 200, and with such regularity do the storms break out there during the latter half of the day that certain seasons that in issuing invitations a week or two ahead it is customary to indicate whether guests are expected to arrive before or after the usual bedtime.

One Air Banned

There is no man in the Navy more popular than Admiral Sir John Kelly. The stories told about him are legion. Once, when directing general drill, in which it is customary always to include at least one unorthodox order, he gave instructions, "Three handmen from each ship are to be sent to the flagship, and on arrival to play a popular air." There was said, above his signature, this note: "For the purpose of this exercise, 'Has anybody seen my poppy' will not be recognized as a popular air."

War Enemies Never Met

Foch and Hindenburg. Disappointed When Plans Were Spoiled. Hindenburg and his great antagonist Foch never met.

Nor did the field-marshal-president ever have the opportunity of talking over the war with Petain, Joffre, Lyautey, Fayolle and Franchet d'Esperey, the other French marshals. Yet like a good professional soldier, he would have liked nothing better.

However, he came within an ace of meeting Foch, for whose character and tactical ability he had the highest regard. It took his elevation to the presidency of the Reich to forestall what would have been a historic encounter.

In the autumn of 1924, Foch told his aide, Major Rene L'Hopital, that he hoped some day to meet Hindenburg, "not as a Frenchman and a German, but as two old soldiers."

L'Hopital, who knows German as thoroughly as he knows English got busy. Through personal friends in Berlin, he had his chiefs desire brought to Hindenburg's ears. The old marshal readily acquiesced.

Then came the problem of how to arrange the meeting. Nationalistic feeling was running high in both France and Germany. Hindenburg's hobnobbing with the hereditary enemy would have caused a storm of protest. Foch's fraternizing with his German counterpart would have made the Third Republic red.

L'Hopital, always a diplomat, found a way out. Foch was to go down to Strasburg ostensibly to inspect the view to take place in the early spring of 1925. Hindenburg, at the same time would be taking the cure in Baden-Baden. Overnight the ex-generalissimo of the Allies would motor over the Kohl bridge, unannounced, with L'Hopital to act as interpreter.

The stage was all set for the interview of 1925. Then Hindenburg's fellow-countrymen elevated him to the presidency. And while a retired German army officer might very well meet a retired French army officer privately, it was naturally out of the question for the president of Germany to receive Marshal Foch under any circumstances.

Foch regretted the missed opportunity until his dying day. "I have the highest regard for Hindenburg," he frequently told friends, "I consider him a really great man."

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALICE MICHAELS

PERSPECTIVE

Let me not ever live too near
The things that cause me fret and fear.

Least enemies I look upon
May loom so vast they hide the sun.
And dark shadows shift away
The glamour of the golden day.

Nor let me hold too near my heart
The things which form life's happiest part;

Too much of brilliance blinds the eyes.
May I love well, yet still be wise
And go, undazzled by the gleam
Of love, which makes earth's loveliest dream.

Let me not ever live too near
The things most drearied or most dear;

Too much of shadow, too much of flame,
Sight, dimmed or dazzled, is the same.
Ah, let me see my bliss or strife
As part, but not the whole of life!

New Hybrid Oats

Experiments At University Of Saskatchewan Produce Drought Resistant

Variety
New hybrid of oats under test at the University of Saskatchewan are showing more greater resistance to drought than the standard varieties. Dr. J. B. Harrington, in charge of cereal experiments, observes, "Several varieties of barley such as Calusa and Regal also show far more ability to withstand dry weather than O.A.C. 21, barley common grown."

Dr. Harrington believes that the experimental results this year will crop up and will provide valuable information on such questions as the smattering of grain varieties.

Needed Sea Trade

A Polish poet of the 16th century said that "a Pole need not know what sea is if he ploughs diligently." But modern Poland has learnt that her prosperity demands sea trade and 62 per cent of her foreign trade is now sea-borne.

Little Helps For This Week

"The God of all grace who hath called us unto His eternal glory by Christ Jesus, after that ye have suffered awhile, make you perfect, stablish, strengthen and settle you."—Peter 5:10.

How shalt thou bear the cross that now

Keep a weighty apprehend? Keep quietly to God, and think Upon the eternal years.

The world has no room for cowards. We must all be ready somehow to toil, to suffer, and to die. And yours is not the less noble life because no drums beat before you when you go out into your daily battle-fields, and no crowd shouts about your coming when you return from the daily victory or defeat.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

We cannot say this or that trouble shall not befall, yet we may by help of the Spirit say nothing that doth befall shall make me do that which is unworthy of a Christian.—R. Sibbes.

Hero Glider Record

German University Student Remains In Air 36 Hours

Kurt Schmidt, Koenigsberg University student, flying a glider he built himself descended after setting a new world's record of 36 hours and 37 minutes.

He had remained at an altitude of 200 to 300 metres (650 to 1,000 feet) to beat the former record of Lieut Cooke, who established a mark of 21 hours and 34 minutes in Honolulu.

Schmidt, 27 years old, is a Nazi storm trooper whose home is at Albenstein. When he tumbled out of his glider he was carried upon the shoulders of his enthusiastic supporters to the Luftsport club. Apart from sore eyes, since he wore no goggles, he was in no worse condition.

Royalty Learns To Box

Since it has become known that the Prince of Wales and his two nephews, Lord Lascelles, and the Hon. Gerald Lascelles, have learned to box, both boys and girls of prominent London families are learning the art of pugilism at the request of their parents. The princess Royal attended a boxing exhibition in which Lady Mary Cambridge, the queen's great-niece, took part.

A Message To The Alberta Grain Growers!

The Alberta Wheat Pool closed its books on July 15th for the 1932-33 business year. The organization is pleased to state that the volume of business transacted during the year was the largest Pool elevators have ever enjoyed.

The natural conclusion is that the thousands of grain growers who have given their patronage to this grower-controlled co-operative are appreciative of the services rendered and are determined to build up within the boundaries of the province a strong and aggressive organization on a co-operative basis.

The organization invites and would appreciate during the new crop year a continuation of the patronage so generously extended in the past. Those who have never utilized the Pool elevator facilities are invited to do so with the assurance that careful, courteous and efficient attention will be given to all business entrusted to it.

The welfare of agriculture in Alberta would suggest that all grain growers should be concerned in the upbuilding of a truly co-operative elevator organization, owned and governed by the grain growers of the province and interested primarily in the welfare of Alberta agriculture.

Burnside Notes.

Miss Tena McLean and her friend Miss Brown, of the mental hospital staff at Ponoka, who have been visiting the former's parents here, are spending a week with Calgary friends.
